

General Data Protection Regulation Readiness Review

Align your Security and Privacy Programs to Reach GDPR Compliance

Challenge

The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) requirement is quickly approaching and will affect establishments around the world. As of May 2018 when the GDPR accountability principle takes effect, organizations will be required to demonstrate compliance with the appropriate measures in place. Today, organizations work to understand how these requirements fit into their current information security and privacy program and develop a plan to reach and maintain compliance. But, where to begin?

Solution

Optiv has the proven ability to look at a client's security and privacy program holistically while also ensuring relevant industry regulations and compliance requirements are met. Preparing for GDPR compliance requires people, process and technology. First, it's important to step back and understand your gaps and create a strategic roadmap to enable execution. Optiv's GDPR readiness review prepares our clients to meet GDPR requirements strategically, cost effectively and aligned to their business.

Delivered by Expert Privacy Consultants: Our executive level consultants deliver intensive, one week interview-based GDPR offering with extensive security and privacy background.

Identify Assets and Controls: During our threat modeling workshop, we identify critical assets and evaluate current controls in place relevant to GDPR.

Evaluate GDPR Maturity: Optiv reviews your current position, maps to GDPR areas of focus and identifies key risk areas.

Actionable Findings and Roadmap: Optiv delivers an executive level summary on the current state of the program along with actionable recommendations and guidance to reach GDPR compliance.
